

Information Technologies

One of the specialties at the Faculty of Engineering of Mingachevir State University is Information Technologies. Information technology is one of the most needed avant-garde specialties in our country and in the world. Information technology is firmly entrenched in almost every aspect of our lives. Today, IT professionals are a fairly large group of professionals whose field of activity is related to information technology.

During the academic year

You will know - How to create a website and Web applications. How apps are applied to different platforms (Windows, Android, Linux, etc.).

You will master - To use the given programming paradigm, information logic, modern methods of development of interface systems, databases, intelligent systems and their architecture, design templates.

You will succeed - programming and personnel animation methods, testing and debugging techniques, information security methods and tools.