

Management

In general, management is management applied at the organizational level. Managers are professionals who manage the resources of an organization to achieve its goals. Graduates in management can work in the private or public sector as a specialist manager in the field of production management, human resource management, strategic management, project management. In addition, graduates can try themselves in the field of tourism, cafe-restaurant business, sales manager in the field of sales.