

Preschool Education and Upbringing

Preschool education is the process of acquiring basic knowledge, skills and habits that serve the intellectual, physical and spiritual development of preschool children. As in primary education, it is especially important to know the characteristics of children's age in preschool education and to choose appropriate teaching and upbringing methods using these features during education.